Synthetic Demo Policy — Probation & Benefits

This document is fictional and is provided only to demonstrate the RAG application. It is not an official airline, employer, or course policy.

New employees normally complete a 60-day probation period. A manager may extend probation once by up to 30 additional days when documented performance goals are still in progress.

During an approved probation extension, base salary and medical coverage continue. Eligibility for annual performance bonuses and internal job transfers begins only after successful completion of probation.

Any probation extension must be communicated in writing by the manager and acknowledged by HR. Questions about individual eligibility should be escalated to HR.

Synthetic Demo Policy — Bereavement & Emergency Leave

Employees who experience a death in their immediate family may request up to three consecutive working days of paid bereavement leave.

For an unexpected bereavement, the employee should notify the supervisor as soon as practical, preferably by phone or message, and send a written or email confirmation within 24 hours.

Employees on probation may receive up to two consecutive working days of bereavement leave and should obtain supervisor approval. Additional time may be requested as annual leave or unpaid leave depending on operational requirements.

HR may request reasonable supporting documentation after the employee returns to work.

Synthetic Demo Policy — Workplace Harassment Reporting

Employees who observe or experience suspected harassment should report the concern promptly. Reports may be made to the HR ethics mailbox, an HR business partner, or the confidential ethics hotline.

A useful report should include the date, location, people involved, witnesses if known, and a factual description of what was observed. Employees should avoid conducting their own investigation.

Retaliation against anyone who raises a concern in good faith is prohibited. Confidentiality will be protected to the extent reasonably possible while the concern is reviewed.

If there is an immediate safety risk, contact site security or local emergency services before using the normal HR reporting channel.
